Highest and Best Use in the ALR: Chen v. Langley Township and the Challenges with Extraordinary Assumptions

Nathan Lapper, one of the Township of Langley's lawyers in the recent Chen v. Langley Township decision, discusses the case and the challenges faced by the plaintiffs in establishing highest and best use of agricultural property in the ALR, including the plaintiffs' extraordinary assumption that the property could be excluded from the ALR as of the date of the expropriation.

Cost: $50 members / $60 non-members
Capacity is limited, register early.
